They are conferrees of the General Deficiency, Naval and Sundry Civil Appropriation bills. The Legislative, Executive and Judicial bill was agreed to by both Houses to-day. One point of difference remains in the Naval bill. The House conferrees to-day insisted that the Secretary of the Navy should be authorized, in his discre-tion, to close such navy yards as he might think expedient. A compro-mise on this clause will undoubtedly be reached to-morrow. The House con-ferrees on the General Deficiency bill are still disputing the claim of the Sen-ate for mileage; at the extra session, ate for mileage at the extra session, but there is no danger that the bill will fail or delay adjournment, because of the dispute. The Internal Revenue bill is now being made to do duty in the Senate, to use the words of Senato Plnmb, as mere diversion. The House resolution providing for adjournment has not been acted upon by the Senate to-day, for the reason that it is not thought advisable to argue or amend it until the last possible moment.

A TELL-TALE TRAIN.

On the local page of this morning's train arrival at Los Angeles, to-wit, a train nearly half a mile in length, consisting of seventy-five empty cars returning from Arizons. It was the largest freight train ever seen here, and is a significant evidence of the drift of commerce hence into the auriferous and argentiferous region which borders Southern California on the east. The return of long trains of empty cars from Arizona is an almost daily occurrence. The fact is, Los Angeles county is being steadily drained of her every pound of surplus produce for the consumption of man and beast in our tributary territory. empty cars from Arizona is an almost produce for the consumption of man and beast in our tributary territory. THE SULTAN OF THE EAST. THE SULTAN OF THE EAST.

There was a Sultan of the East
Who used to ride a stubborn beast;
A maryel of the donkey kind,
That much perplexed his owner's mind.
By turns he moved a rod ahead;
Then backed a rod or so instead,
And thus the day would pass around,
The Sultan gaining little ground.
The Sultan gaining little ground.
The Sultan gaining little ground.
The Sultan sultant of the servant on before would stray,
And pick their tents beside the way,
And pick their tents beside the way,
And pass the time as best they might
Until their master hove in sight.
Until their master hove in sight.
The Bultan many mediand spurs applied,
And stripped a dozen trees, at least,
Of branches, to persuade the beast.
But all his efforts went for naught;
No reformation could be wrought.
At length, before the palace gate
He called the wise men of the state,
And bade them now their skill display
By finding where the trouble lay.
With solemn looks and thoughts profoun
The men of learning gathered 'round.
The beast was measured o'er with care;
They proved him by the plumb and squar
The compass to his ribs applied,
And every joint by rule was tried;
But nothing could the doctors find
To prove he differed from his kind.
Said they: "Your Highness, it appears
The beast is sound from hoof to ears;
No outward blemishes we see
To limit action fair and free.
In view of this, the fact is plain
The mischief lies within the brain.
Now, we suggest, to stop his tricks,
a sail upon his back you fix,
Of the more and the seat were raised.
The Sultan well their wisdon, praised,
The Sultan well their wisdon, praised,
Two mass upon the beast were raised.

Sultan well their wisdon, praised, masts upon the beast were raised, schooner-rigged from head to tail, hallfards, spanker-boom and sail, toper shape equipped was he, lough designed to sail the sea! And when the Sultan next bestrode The beast upon a lengthy road, With favoring winds that whistled strong And swiftly urged the craft along. The people cleared the track with speed; And old and young alike agreed A stranger sight could not be found. From side to side the province round.

A Carson City correspondent of the STREET, opposite Post Office.

A Carson City correspondent of the Saramento Bee writes:

I have just learned from a gentleman who has been visiting the Rubicon Springs, in El Dorado county, that a party by the name of Chas. Lusk has been in the habit of hiring Indians to kill deer for him during the fall months, he furnishing them with guns, ammunition, etc., and paying twenty-five cents per hide. Parties who know say that the Indians slaughtered over 400 deer last fall. But this man Lusk had all his trouble for naught, as another party slipped in and purchased the hides from the Indians, and he got left in the lurch. All true sportsmen will agree with me when I say that he was served rightly. I am told that the region where this slaughter occurred is no longer a good hunting place for deen very few being seen nowadays; and how can it be otherwise when such butchers as this fellow Lusk in El Dorado county, and others in the northern counties, are allowed (under the pale of the law) to ruthlessly destroy the noblest animal of the forest Let us hope the sportsmen of California will see that their legislators will enact some law the coming session whereby this will cease, and keep the few remaining deer for sport, and not for hide-dealers' gain. rs' gain. "STUB-AND-TWIST."

DONNER LAKE FISH.

The mystery of the fish dying in Donner Lake has not yet been explained or even investigated. If, as some allege, some miscreant has been wantonly killing them by using giant powder, steps should be taken by our officers to bring the offender to an account for his acts, and the punishment inflicted should be a sever one. If inflicted should be a severe one. If, on the other hand, the fish are dying of some disease, the fact ought to be known, and also the nature of the disknown, and also the nature of the dis-ease and preventives therefor, if any. The prevailing opinion seems to be that they are dying from the latter cause. It is noticed that the same phenomena occurred at this time last year; also that no trout were found among the dead—only the chubs appearing af-fected. The theory that the trout sink while the chubs float is not a reason while the chubs float is not a reasonwhile the chubs float is not a reasonable one, and if giant powder was the destroying agent, dead trout would necessarily appear. Something should at once be done in the matter, for as it is now no pleasure is derived by going to the lake—the stench arising from tons of decaying fish being almost unbearable, and pleasure-parties have to hold their handkerchiefs to their noses while gazing upon one of the

HUNTING BRUIN.

The Calaveras Prospect, of last week, says: "Wm. Steele and A. L. Wylie, while at the monntains on Steele's sheep camp, slaughtered a huge din namon bear. They had noticed bear tracks in the camp, and one night they set a gun, with a dainty morsel for Bruin. That night they heard the report in the distance, and in the morning upon reaching the spot they discovered the track and some blood. They started in pursuit and soon came upon him near the Stanislaus, when finally, after lodging eight bullets in him, he was brought to the ground. The animal, when dressed, weighed abut 800 pounds.

to fall into a childlike slumber, when a slight noise caused one to look back of where they lay. What he saw he will not swear to; it looked as large to his startled and half-open eyes as a bear, and it almost walked over their outstretched legs. In all probability it was a large wildcat. Our sportsmen were thoroughly awake the rest of that night, but were awarded but scantily for their pains, the early morning revealing numerous fresh deer-tracks, but no deer.

Another local sportsman, A. L. Gates, as yet unknown to the press, arose (very early for him) at 4 o'clock on Sunday morning, and walked up the river about a mile, when, to his utter consternation and dismay, a fine two year-old buck and a doe jumped from an adjoining corn-field, only sixty yards away. Our Nimrod did not have an attack of "buck ague," but turned loose his Remington on the buck, bringing him to mother earth "for keeps."
